Newport, June 29—(UP)—Newport was ready today for an estimated 15,000 visitors Wednesday and Thursday for the Miss Arkansas beauty pageant and the annual convention of the Eastern Arkansas Young Business Men's Club.

A huge stage has been completed at Memorial Field for the three pageants when 92 beauties from over the state will compete in modeling evening dresses and bathing suits and give their exhibitions of talents.

Newport's 65 piece band will furnish the music.

Noble Miller of Lonoke, president of the AYMC, and Paul Chambers of Helena, secretary, arrived here Monday to aid Sam Browne, president of the Newport club, and Millard Hardin, pageant chairman, with the final details.

The entrants:

Iris Jean Logan of Arkadelphia, Jerry Thompson of Batesville, Joe Ann Shanks of Blytheville, Mary Lou Pulliam of Brinkley, Bobbie Jean Zell of Clarksville, Van Louis McDaniel of Forrest City, Mary Kay Barber of Gurdon, Jackson of Hardy, Patsy Mable of Helena, Barbara Lawrence of Harrisburg, Ann Jackson of Holly Grove, Bonnie Anthony of Hope, Lorayn Childs of Hot Springs.

Betty Puckett of Little Rock, Ada Susan Campbell of Lonoke, Marcella Batchelor of Malvern, Christine Traloff of Marianna, Eloise Cope of Mammoth Spring, Bobbie Hurley of Newport, Dolores Whisen of North Little Rock, Lonnie Moore Johnson of Osceola, Ann Herget of Paragould, Phena Daniel of Prescott, Lavonne Williams of Searcy, Bobby Jackson of Stuttgart, Laredo Wells of Walnut Ridge, Julia Bivens of West Helena, Bonnie Manchester of West Memphis, and Virginia Elthridge of Wynne.

ing. The group had invited him to speak and urged him to become a candidate. He declined, on both counts and wrote:

"When I made a public statement last January referring to a possible political career, I did it only after earnest study to determine the field in which I might possibly be of some future usefulness."

"I am anxious to do my duty at felt that it was my own problem to determine whether or not sense of duty could call me into the political field."

The New York meeting voted to endorse the Democratic national convention, which opens in Philadelphia July 12, that it opposes President Truman and supports Eisenhower for president and Justice William O. Douglas for vice president.

However, Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath said he saw no possibility of a draft-Eisenhower move at the convention.

"I think the delegates to the convention understand he is not a candidate," he said.

Police questioned them most of the night.

Earl today, Sheehan and Lt. John Barton of the Detroit police announced the woman had "talked."

Sheehan said the woman told this story:

She and Hunter left Chicago by bus for Detroit June 11 and registered at a Detroit hotel Griswold that evening. There they were joined by Sacketti and Juanita Cook, now under arrest in Detroit.

Miss Lari, an acquaintance of Jones, telephoned the contractor the following night and Jones invited the four to his home. Jones started making love to her, Miss Lari said, but she resisted his advances.

Sacketti started fighting with Jones over his attentions to Miss Lari, the woman said, and Hunter joined the struggle when Sacketti seemed to be getting the worst of it.

While Hunter held Jones Sacketti beat him on the head with a pistol which he had taken from a drawer, Jones collapsed.

The two men took $25 from Jones' pockets and then burned the soles of his feet in an effort to make him tell the combination of a wall safe. Police said they later learned the safe contained $2,500.

The men tied his feet with neckties, the men tied his feet with neckties. They were unable to bind his arms because he struggled violently, the woman said.

Finally, she said, Hunter and Sacketti knotted a pillowcase around Jones' neck. Leaving their victim unconscious, they retrieved a diamond ring which Jones had buried across the room, and the four left.

The body of Jones was found June 13 by a relative. A pillowcase was tightened about his neck, the soles of his feet were burned and his head bore numerous cuts and bruises.

been considered one of the most ardent of the new Communist regimes.

American diplomats in Rome said official circles are giving close attention to the Cominform's words of denunciation was that utterance. One charge in the 3,000 Yugoslavians had allowed "defection" of Soviet military specialists and the discredit of the Soviet Army.

Informed economic sources, close to the European Recovery Program organization in Italy, said it "more than likely that" worsening economic conditions and a very strong desire by many Yugoslav circles to receive Marshall plan benefits contributed to the breach between Tito and Moscow.

Divided Europe watched Yugoslavia to see if Tito can hold his war-won role in the face of stern Russian-led ire at his policies.

Tito obviously was on a diplomatic hot spot. Diplomatic sources in Warsaw said there "are strong indications the Cominform's headquarters may be moved from Belgrade to Aasav, which is closer to Moscow anyway."

An official British source said the Cominform statement "proved the Cominform is an instrument of the Kremlin" and "has shed all pretense of being an information bureau."

The Briton said the Cominform now has emerged as "a Communist body with international executive and disciplinary functions."

He cited the statement as evidence the internal affairs of "countries behind the iron curtain."

"It makes any talk of the Marshall plan being interference in other countries' affairs seem small and foolish," the official British source commented. The British government asked its ambassadors in Prague and Belgrade for a detailed report on the matter.

The Prague radio said at noon "the July 21 meeting of the Communist party of Yugoslavia will be an important day in the history of that country."

From all appearances, the Cominform denunciation caught many Communists flatfooted, since the reaction was not so prompt as is customary.

At Lake Success, Dr. Jan Papanek, Czech U. N. delegate, expressed belief that Tito may be in grave personal danger, while high U. S. diplomatic officials in Washington expressed the opinion that the Yugoslav marshal and his associates may already have been "taken care of."

By "taken care of," they meant Tito may have been removed as head of Yugoslavia's government, or merely "immobilized" for a period of thinking and repentance—or liquidated.

These were the major developments:

1. Undersecretary of State Loyd Garrison, with resident Truman yesterday and later attended a White House cabinet session.

There was no official word on the topics under discussion, but it was learned that one of them was the Berlin situation.

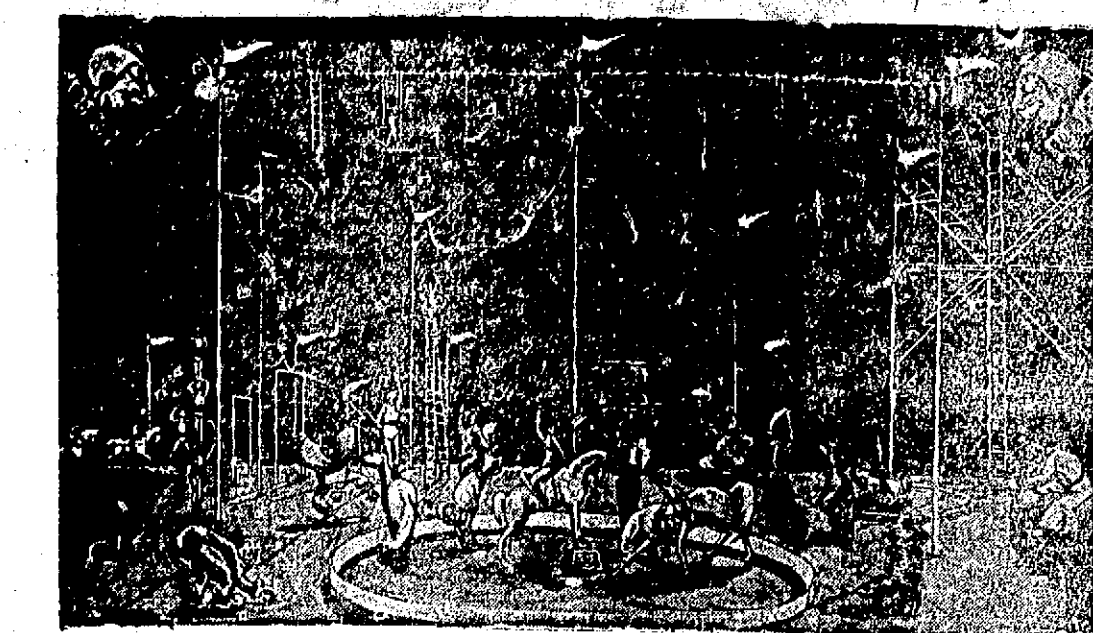

2. Undersecretary of the Army William Traper and U. S. Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas went into a London huddle with Britain's Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin. Traper then flew to Berlin to join Lt. Gen. A. C. Wedemeyer of the U. S. general staff for conferences with the American commander, Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

3. Prime Minister Attlee summoned Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, chief of the British imperial general staff, to a special cabinet session last night.

Bevin meantime put off until Wednesday a statement on over-British policy in Germany which he had been scheduled to make before Parliament yesterday.

The postponement indicated that the United States and Britain may be planning simultaneous statements then.

Grandstand Circus to Play Here 3 Days

Daring tight wire, aerial acts and many other attractions will be featured in the J. C. Michaels Big City Grandstand Circus at Fair Park Rodeo Arena on July 3, 4 and 5. Two performances will be held each day except Sunday. Afternoon shows will start at 3 p. m. and night shows at 8 o'clock. A single show will be held at 3 p. m. Sunday. The circus is sponsored by the Third District Livestock Association.

Studebaker Quits Job as Education Commissioner

Washington, June 29 — (AP) — Dr. J. W. Studebaker resigned today as U. S. Commissioner of Education, saying he can no longer afford to remain in the federal government.

President Truman accepted the resignation effective July 15.

In his letter to Mr. Truman, Dr. Studebaker said he has continued as commissioner for 14 years.

"Through the darkest years of economic depression, the period of preparation, the strenuous years of war, and three very difficult years of postwar adjustment,

"Along with the many other men, the time has now come when I can no longer afford to remain in the federal government," he said.

Mr. Truman in reply expressed regret and told Studebaker: "I can fully understand the situation."

The Doctor Says:

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

More has been learned about epilepsy in the last few years than in the preceding 3000 of human history. It is primarily a disease of the brain. Epilepsy is divided into two main varieties. The less important kind is called petit mal, in which there is a brief loss of consciousness without convulsions. The severe type is called grand mal, in which there is loss of consciousness with typical convulsions.

Before an attack there is usually a peculiar sensation in some part of the body. This is known as an aura. The sensation is hard to describe but an "unusual feeling" in the stomach area is one of the most common. Patients learn to recognize this aura and to know that an attack is on the way.

Attack Described
At the beginning of a major attack, the patient may give a loud scream or yell, which is called an epileptic cry. When an attack first begins the head is usually drawn back or to one side, the jaws are fixed, the hands clenched and the eyes staring straight out. This is quickly followed by muscular contractions, noisy breathing and brick-red colored face. During the period from the epileptic cry on, the patient is unconscious.

An attack is a frightening thing for someone to witness who does not know what is happening. After the attack, however, the patient recovers consciousness without recollection of what has happened. Attacks may come only at night so that occasionally someone may be asleep for years without knowing it.

Now we have new methods for testing the electrical waves in the brain. This has shown that the brain waves of someone with epilepsy are different from those of a normal person. This method of testing has already proved to be of great help in finding the people most likely to develop epilepsy, how serious the disease is, and what treatment is best.

QUESTION: What is the cause of an obstruction of the bowel and is it always fatal?
ANSWER: Obstruction of the bowel can come from a cause within the bowel itself or from something pressing on it from outside. Causes include foreign bodies, tumors, and a telescoping of the bowel itself. Obstruction is not always fatal, indeed far from it.

Divorcee May Have to Go to Court Anyway

Cullman, Ala., June 29 — (UPI) — The red-haired divorcee who linked her private life with that of Gov. James E. Folsom may have to appear in court after all.

Cullman County court officials said today that Mrs. Christine Putman Johnston has been summoned to appear as a witness in a hearing Thursday on the paternity suits against the governor.

Mrs. Johnston and her two-year-old boy first brought suits to name her the governor's common law wife and the father of her child. Then two weeks ago she petitioned the court to dismiss the suits without consulting her attorney, Kingman Shelburne of Birmingham.

Shelburne filed objections to dismissal of the suit brought by the boy to name the governor his father. Johnston to appear as a witness during the hearing on the objections. The child's uncle, Carter E. Putman who is named in the boy's suit as "next friend" also was summoned.

Cullman court officials said the courtroom here would seat only about 500. They believed the room would be large enough since "interest had dropped off" in the case since she filed for dismissal of the suits.

Judge James H. Crow, Jr., will begin the hearing at 11 a. m. Thursday.

Searchers Find Body of Missing Girl in Oregon

Oregon, Ill., June 29 — (UPI) — Searchers today reported they have found the body of Mary Jane Reed, 16-year-old telephone operator missing since last Thursday, when her escort on an automobile ride was shot to death in a lonely lover's lane near here.

The body was found in an abandoned silica quarry south of here. Coroner Fred Hunter of Ogle County left for the scene. He said that he had received the report from a searching party, and that he did not yet know the cause of the girl's death.

She last was seen Thursday night when she had a date with Stanley Skridla, 26, a line repairman.

Skridla's body was found in a ditch near his parked car on a late night ride. He had been shot five times with a .22-caliber pistol, apparently as he stood in the road.

The girl had disappeared. A search was begun at once by county and state authorities and by volunteers. Since early Friday, they had patrolled the surrounding area, fearing that she was dead.

Cullman County court officials said today that Mrs. Christine Putman Johnston has been summoned to appear as a witness in a hearing Thursday on the paternity suits against the governor.

Mrs. Johnston and her two-year-old boy first brought suits to name her the governor's common law wife and the father of her child. Then two weeks ago she petitioned the court to dismiss the suits without consulting her attorney, Kingman Shelburne of Birmingham.

Shelburne filed objections to dismissal of the suit brought by the boy to name the governor his father. Johnston to appear as a witness during the hearing on the objections. The child's uncle, Carter E. Putman who is named in the boy's suit as "next friend" also was summoned.

Cullman court officials said the courtroom here would seat only about 500. They believed the room would be large enough since "interest had dropped off" in the case since she filed for dismissal of the suits.

Judge James H. Crow, Jr., will begin the hearing at 11 a. m. Thursday.

Searchers Find Body of Missing Girl in Oregon

Oregon, Ill., June 29 — (UPI) — Searchers today reported they have found the body of Mary Jane Reed, 16-year-old telephone operator missing since last Thursday, when her escort on an automobile ride was shot to death in a lonely lover's lane near here.

The body was found in an abandoned silica quarry south of here. Coroner Fred Hunter of Ogle County left for the scene. He said that he had received the report from a searching party, and that he did not yet know the cause of the girl's death.

She last was seen Thursday night when she had a date with Stanley Skridla, 26, a line repairman.

Skridla's body was found in a ditch near his parked car on a late night ride. He had been shot five times with a .22-caliber pistol, apparently as he stood in the road.

The girl had disappeared. A search was begun at once by county and state authorities and by volunteers. Since early Friday, they had patrolled the surrounding area, fearing that she was dead.

When her questions went unanswered, she said quietly, smiling, "Won't you mix me a drink, Marcus, please?"

"Certainly." I'm sorry I didn't suggest it. Sterling got up and went to the bar.

Miriam spoke to his back. "You just reminded me, Marcus, that I knew I was marrying a poor man. But I was marrying a man rich in feelings. You had the name and the blood of your father. He was proud of you. He expected great things of you, even if you were handicapped by the misfortune that swept away his resources while you were in college. He knew that the bank he had helped build would have a place for you, where you could carry on his name and get it back up to the top again. He died with that confidence in you. My father had that confidence in you too, Marcus, and I shared it. I've never wanted to give up being proud of you."

At the mixing bar, Sterling had to grip his fists to stop the trembling of his fingers. His watch showed that only 10 minutes was left before Harry Bindle would be at the front door. Miriam seemed in a mood to talk on and on. He had to get her out . . . up to her own room. What she was saying was being lost on him. Only one thing counted. She had no intention of helping him.

He grasped the glass he had intended for Bindle. The double door would work fast. He convinced himself that it couldn't possibly be fatal . . . not a dozen invisible drops in a stiff highball. He'd merely have to carry her up to her room, then take care of things after he handled Bindle.

He took a grip on himself and managed to get the drink to Miriam, holding one for himself in his other hand. As she took the glass from him, Miriam said, "Darling, you're actually trembling. I don't intend . . ."

"I'm not," Sterling interrupted, retreating to his own chair. He thought of cigarettes. He had his case out, and lighter . . . got up. "Cigarette, Miriam?" he asked.

Miriam was out of her chair, her untouched drink on the table beside it. Her eyes were lighted by a smile he couldn't understand. "I'll get one of my own, Marcus."

She moved quickly to the table near the door and picked up her bag. Her back to Sterling, again, she said, "What I've looked for most in you, Marcus, is to quit running away to see you grow up and have the courage to face things."

Something in Marcus Sterling snapped. "I've been facing you for almost three years," he said. He had hurried it at her bitterly. He instantly regretted his words.

Miriam stood rigid. Her back still to her husband, her legs open in front of her. The tense silence of the momentary tableau was broken when she snapped her bag shut. She did not turn at once. She had been unmercifully wounded and she knew the pain was shooting in her face. She waited until she could be sure it had been erased. She turned like one in a hypnotic spell. Sterling could not have told her more plainly what she had been feeling to believe that he did not love her; that for him it was only a marriage of form, after its first brief romantic spurt.

She walked back to her chair so slowly, her bag clutched under one arm. She had not taken out her cigarettes. Her face was a frozen pallor and in her eyes, turned fully upon her husband, was a tragic mixture of torture and compassion. She bent down and picked up the drink Sterling had given her. He sat petrified, watching.

"I'm very tired, Marcus," she said gently. "I've had a hard day. I'll take my drink up with me. Thanks. I'll drink it when I'm ready for bed." When she had turned away from him, she added, "Good night."

Sterling watched her go, powerless to get out of his chair. He mumbled, "Good night." He heard

Two Japs Taking Part in Bataan March to Die

Yokohama, June 29 — (AP) — Two former Japanese officers, Maj. Gen. Yoshitaka Kawano and Col. Kiyotaro Hirano, were sentenced today to be hanged for responsibility in the 1942 Bataan death march.

Both were convicted by a U. S. Eighth army tribunal. Approximately 10,000 American and Filipino soldiers died in the Bataan march and 25,000 Filipinos died later at Camp Donnel.

SIGN MARSHALL PACT
Copenhagen, Denmark, June 29 — (AP) — Denmark and United States signed a bilateral Marshall and treaty today.

The text will not be published until after it has been ratified by the Danish parliament, probably tomorrow.

The door of her bedroom closed before he got to his feet. His clothes clung to his big body uncomfortably. His cheeks burned. He paced nervously. He looked at his watch. Five more minutes. For Bindle, he no longer had any semblance of a plan. He found his mind working on what Miriam had said: growing up and facing things. Well, he'd have to face Bindle. He went to the radio and turned it on. There would be an announcement of 11 o'clock and then the news. That might be a good idea, to have the news going on the radio, to prevent voices—his voice and Bindle's voice—from being distinguishable upstairs. He had already forgotten about the double dose of sleeping drops in Miriam's drink.

Miriam's voice came down to him. He went out into the hall. Miriam was standing at the head of the stairway.

"I forgot about the cars, Marcus," Miriam called down. "Your car had the driveway blocked, and now my car has you blocked from getting out. I'll throw you my keys. Here they are."

A ring of keys fell at his feet. "Be careful about my keys," Miriam called. "Leave them beside the telephone. Thanks."

Sterling watched her move away . . . watched until she closed her door. He picked up the keys and pained them with the ring around one finger. He was back at the radio just in time to hear the 11 o'clock "bing." He hurried back into the hall, moved quickly to the front door. He saw a thick shadow figure coming toward the porch, waited for the first heavy footstep. He had the door open before Harry Bindle's thick finger found the doorbell button.

DOROTHY DIX Disgruntled Husbands

The perpetual grouch with wivis is that they can never please their husbands, because they never know what the unreasonable creatures want to make them happy and contented. Hence, when Friend Wife is breaking her neck to please her lord and master, she often finds that she is doing the very thing that gets most on his nerves. And to avoid this catastrophe a woman, who has had a long and varied experience with husbands, sends the following list of their quirks to this column. She says:

"A husband likes to throw newspapers and ashes on the floor . . . he likes to invite friends to dinner unexpectedly, without briefing his wife . . . He likes a lot of paint on other women, but doesn't care for much on her . . . He wants to drive the automobile himself, without any suggestions from the back seat. He resents being told that he is getting fat or bald."

"He never gets reconciled to paying the family bills, and he never ceases to wonder what his wife did with the money that she gave him. He resents all suggestions for personal improvement, particularly if they come from his wife . . . He regards home as a place where he can park his good manners and affability, leave off most of his clothes, and work off the spleen he has accumulated during the day."

Inconsistent
"He will lose $100 at a poker game, then grupe because a 6-day-old ham bone was thrown into the garbage can before he got around to it . . . He will buy his wife a $1,200 fur coat, then make a scene if she loses $1.20 at bridge . . . He feels sure he would be rich if only he had stayed single."

"He ruins ructions when his wife buys a new gown or hat, but he takes pride in her being well-dressed . . . He boasts to others about what a good manager and crackerjack cook his wife is, but he would die rather than pay her a compliment . . . He has the head-of-the-house complex, and bitterly resents it if his wife doesn't ask his permission to buy a spool of thread, or go to the store, but after she makes the gesture of obedience he doesn't really care what she does."

"He may love his wife devotedly and work his fingers to the bone to give her every luxury, but she has to guess at the state of his affections. He will never tell her that he thinks she is the greatest woman in the world . . . Before marriage he could spend hours telling his Sweetie how beautiful and wonderful she was and how he adored her. After marriage he never mentions the subject again. Before marriage he was never too tired to take his Girl Friend out stepping. After marriage his feet always hurt him at night."

"While the baby has the colic and howls and the kids are noisy and obstreperous, he always refers to them as his 'wife's children,' but after the girls grow up to be beauties and the boys are taking honors at college, they become 'MY children.'"

"And so on and so forth, but being as husbands are like they are, is it any wonder that wives do not always know how to handle them?"

Philadelphia, June 29.—The eloquent symbol of the new Republican Party is no true get of the noble, it sometimes dumb and headstrong, rogue of the days before D. Roosevelt. He is a monster out of the stables of Alcoholics Anonymous with traces of donkey, monkey, eagle and auk, and a Henry Cabot Lodge would take this horrible hybrid down in the south forty and shoot him for riddance.

All work, a grotesque mock-eloquence, made of plastic or some such chicle wrested from the sorcerers' cauldrons of that brave new world of the future, alternately swelled and sagged on the canopies of the sidewalk on the Broad Street side of the Bellvue-Stratford. It was a morbid hallucination with an insipid mouth and a listless trunk and, in all, a fugitive from Walt Disney's imbecilities. The maudlin of the party stood watches throughout the convention and whenever this unpredictable pachyderm began to droop, the knees melting and the behind collapsing as though flinching from the cruel words of the New Deal, these hostlers rushed out with tanks and valves and blew him full of gas again.

One day there was an item in the papers, inspired, perhaps by some sinister propaganda, reporting the existence of a "wandering circus" that this baggage had been attached by a local fugitive. The Republicans might better have let the plaintiff have him and got him out of sight of the convention symbol of the corruption of the New Deal.

He was no true son of Jumbo or Bolivar.

The Republicans had adopted Harry S. Truman's program of social and civil disparagement of the white South for the appeasement and seduction of the Northern aliens of New York, Philadelphia and a few other Eastern cities.

Negroes of New York, Philadelphia and a few other Eastern cities. These aliens were colonized by Roosevelt and Eleanor the Great, La Guardia and, father forgive them, Bill O'Dwyer, the mayor of New York, and a number of other fine, Irish b'yes in the mysterious metropolitan Democratic machines. These aliens are more common than Democratic and they always enrolled in the American Labor Party after the Communist Party subsided for a while and for a purpose. They did this to put themselves on the extreme left border of New Deal and as close as could be to Stalin's in a test election in the Bronx, they elected a candidate for Congress who was the candidate of Henry Wallace, who is the candidate of Josef Stalin for president of the United States.

The Truman civil rights program, not to put too fine a point upon it, has been the program of the Communists for fifteen years. It was adopted by Roosevelt, not out of regard for Negroes whom he trusted as equal citizens, or for decency at the polls, for which he showed aggressive abhorrence, but for the purposes of a political coup.

The Republicans have now embraced the same articles for the same reasons and with equal hypocrisy, for they are no more social with colored men in daily life than the white men of Natchez, or Jackson. However, their embarrassment is relatively less because they have always paid lip service, a term I find handy though obscure, to the theory of inter-racial social doings.

The Republicans have felt also that they had to endorse the Communist demand for federal intervention in local police cases which by a shyster's distortion can be construed as lynchings.

They did however refrain from exempting lynchings done by union thugs on picket lines and in other instances by unions as the Truman program did. That doubtless will mean that in the next few years, under President Dewey, Congress will pass a law whereby conspirators in the smoke-filled rooms of the Communist party can kick up technical lynchings on pretexts. Then local governments and police will be driven frantic trying to keep out of trouble with the Department of Justice under the anti-lynching law. And presently we will have another dead-letter law, like prohibition.

Under good, orthodox Republican doctrine, cities and counties had their own exclusive responsibility in all disorders short of actual armed rebellion and this concession by the party is that monster of so

College Golfers Try Luck on Stanford Course

Palo Alto, Calif., June 29.—(P)—The country's finest college golfers, most of them rebuffed by par in their initial efforts, tried their luck over the tricky Stanford course again today in the second half of 36-hole qualifying tests for the National Collegiate championship tournament.

Big Nine Conference title holder Fred Wampler of Purdue University and Tom Lambie of Stanford were the pace setters as the field of more than 150 dug in for the qualifying places. The low scorers after tonight will pair off for match play leading toward the individual championship.

Wampler and Lambie turned in three under par 68 for the long, heavily wooded Stanford course. It requires 3653 yards for a standard card performance.

Wampler solved the layout with a 3335. Lambie scored 3434.

The co-leaders set out with Charles Coe of the University of Oklahoma, one of the favorites, on their heels. Coe shot 3633 in his opener.

Timely Warning
Pulitzer Harry Mendel, who concocted the gag of mailing out daily cards which said "—Days until Joe Louis knocks out Jersey Joe Walcott," posted the final one Saturday.

"0 days until Joe Louis knocks out Jersey Joe Walcott. 181 days until Christmas."

Shorts and Shells
If Michigan State's Chuck Davey defeated in three years of college boxing, is good enough to win the Olympic lightweight crown, a group of Michigan fans plan to turn him pro with the idea of grabbing the worst championship and "cleaning up" on long odds guys who control titles are interested only in cleaning up. . . . Miami's Gardner Mulloy, who never lacks confidence, wrote Levan Richards the other day that he's counting on taking "Wing" Wadsworth's Davis cup Captain Alvin Mann figure. Mulloy has the Indian sign on Bobby Falkenburg.

The mauling brawler from New York, who won the title from Tommy Dell Dec. 20, 1946 and who defended it for the third time against 21-year-old Docusen of New Orleans, admitted his plight when he stepped into the dressing room.

"I just didn't have it, George," he mumbled to his manager, George Gainford, as he slumped on the dressing table. "I knew I didn't when I had him down until I saw him on the floor."

That was the only breakdown of the fight, but it was enough to keep the speedy Louisiana scrapper, who had lost only twice before in his 38 fight career, from taking the title.

Until Robinson unleashed a flaming right hook which floored the challenger for a nine count, it had been a nearly even brawl.

Lightweight by an even pound at 145, Docusen compared to Robinson's 148. Docusen relied on speed and boxing skill to keep Ray at bay.

He kept the champion off balance with skillful but light left jabs to the chin. Occasionally he powered through a right. But he never staggered the title holder, and that was his mistake.

Ray took everything the crowding challenger could offer. Then the fight broke into a right. But he was out of his feet but that was all.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh C. Fullerton, Jr.

New York, June 29.—(P)—The standings show the Yankees are only one game out of the American League lead, but the stories in the papers about their pitching read as if the club was in a panic. Tommy Byrne, who hadn't pitched a complete game since he joined the club in 1942, was given his "last chance" Sunday and saved his job by cutting out the Tigers. Now they're talking about farming out the young Spec Shea and Spec insists he was down too long to go back to the minors again. In other words, Manager Bucky Harris is conducting a frantic search for another reliable pitcher. He must believe that story that the team in first place on July fourth is the pennant winner.

Timely Warning
Pulitzer Harry Mendel, who concocted the gag of mailing out daily cards which said "—Days until Joe Louis knocks out Jersey Joe Walcott," posted the final one Saturday.

"0 days until Joe Louis knocks out Jersey Joe Walcott. 181 days until Christmas."

Shorts and Shells
If Michigan State's Chuck Davey defeated in three years of college boxing, is good enough to win the Olympic lightweight crown, a group of Michigan fans plan to turn him pro with the idea of grabbing the worst championship and "cleaning up" on long odds guys who control titles are interested only in cleaning up. . . . Miami's Gardner Mulloy, who never lacks confidence, wrote Levan Richards the other day that he's counting on taking "Wing" Wadsworth's Davis cup Captain Alvin Mann figure. Mulloy has the Indian sign on Bobby Falkenburg.

The mauling brawler from New York, who won the title from Tommy Dell Dec. 20, 1946 and who defended it for the third time against 21-year-old Docusen of New Orleans, admitted his plight when he stepped into the dressing room.

"I just didn't have it, George," he mumbled to his manager, George Gainford, as he slumped on the dressing table. "I knew I didn't when I had him down until I saw him on the floor."

That was the only breakdown of the fight, but it was enough to keep the speedy Louisiana scrapper, who had lost only twice before in his 38 fight career, from taking the title.

Brooding Veteran Slays Wife and Two Children

Portland, Ore., June 28 —(UP)—An air force veteran and psycho-frenetic student killed his pretty wife, his two sleeping babies and himself because he was convinced he was a failure, relatives said today. In an outburst of violence, Robert C. Stoller, Jr., 25, fatally shot, stabbed and bludgeoned his wife, Laura Lee, 24, and shot his children as they lay sleeping in their cribs. Then apparently, he telephoned the police department. Police said they received an anonymous call requesting a coroner at the Stoller address.

When detectives arrived at the house, they found Stoller unconscious on the kitchen floor, a self-inflicted bullet wound in his right temple. He died at a hospital.

Husband Held for Slaying His Wife

Myrtle Beach, S. C., June 28 —(UP)—Lucian Buffkin, 42, was said by police today to have confessed to slaying his wife by beating her with a heavy stick, whipping her with the buckle end of his belt and stabbing her with a 12-inch butcher knife.

Buffkin confessed the slaying, Sheriff C. E. Sasser reported, after two hours of intensive grilling. He had first reported that his home had been broken into and his wife slain.

Arrested as an accessory was his nephew Lannan Buffkin, 30, who the sheriff said had attempted to aid his uncle in covering up the actual events.

Mrs. Buffkin's body was found in their home, nearly every room of which was spattered with blood. Her body bore more than 100 bruises and stab wounds, the sheriff said.

The confession said, the sheriff reported, that Buffkin had been drinking heavily Saturday afternoon and began to fight with his nephew. Mrs. Buffkin intervened, and her husband turned on her and began to beat her with a four-foot-long stick.

Buffkin admitted striking her with a belt buckle and with the end of a hammer, he claimed, that he and Lannan Buffkin left the house while she was still alive.

They spent the night at the nephew's home, Buffkin said, and discovered this morning that Mrs. Buffkin was dead. The confession said the two men arranged to fake a story of having been on an all-night fishing trip, and to have found her on their return.

The story was broken down after neighbors told police they heard sounds of a terrific fight during the height of a Saturday afternoon thunderstorm.

Firestone Strike at Memphis Comes to End

Memphis, Tenn., June 29 —(AP)—A week-long work stoppage involving 4,200 workers at the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company plant here has ended, a union official said today.

Herbert E. Williams, president of the United Rubber Workers of America (CIO) local, said the walkout was unauthorized. He said workers became disgruntled because one crew lost production wages.

A company official said, "There was no issue to be settled. There were no negotiations."

U. S. Denies That Ships Fired on Arab Positions

Cairo, June 29 —(UP)—American authorities categorically denied a Syrian charge that United States warships fired on Arabs in Palestine, and the Arab League accepted the denial.

The secretary-general of the Arab League, Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha, said American officials had given him information "proving that the ship involved was not American."

Azzam's statement came after U. S. charges against the Syrian warships and Navy Attaché William H. Headden called on him. Azzam said Headden informed him that he had been in the area at the time of the alleged U. S. attack and could flatly deny accuracy of the charge.

The Syrian foreign minister, Mayshen El Barazi Bey, had planned a protest to Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden, the UN mediator in Palestine, on grounds that a U. S. warship assigned to the United Nations mediator had shelled Arab lines. Barazi charged that the shelling caused extensive damage and killed a number of civilians.

Most Dangerous International Issue Is Russian Drive to Gain Control of Germany

BY DEWITT MacKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
The Soviet drive to gain control of Germany remains the biggest and most dangerous international issue — not a threat of impending war but a breeder of grim potentialities.

The three other powers of occupation — America, Britain and France — view the situation gravely. The British cabinet yesterday called into special session for the second time in twelve hours and Foreign Secretary Bevin rushed back to London from a badly needed vacation at the seaside.

The immediate concern was for the some 2,000,000 inhabitants of the American-British-French zones of Berlin whom the Russians are trying to starve out by cutting rail transport. Bevin told Parliament that a "delicate state of affairs" exists in the blocked capital.

This diabolical scheme of cruelty against a helpless civilian population is, of course, part of the Red campaign to conquer the western powers by withdrawing from the city, thus delivering it into the hands of the Moscovites. Since Berlin lies in the heart of the Soviet zone, the evacuation of the huge metropolis by the democracies would enable the Moscovites to establish their projected Soviet government with Berlin as its capital.

France naturally is uneasy, since she is too exhausted from the last year's big gains of the Russian in actual fighting should develop. He is too exhausted from the last war to contemplate any such development complacently.

However, she has joined America and Britain in making it clear that the three democracies don't intend to be pushed out of Berlin, come hell or high water.

This fresh Russian aggression was accompanied by significant coincidence. President Truman

Young Molls Squeal on Toughies
Chicago, June 29 —(UP)—Two teen-aged gun molls, whose bandit boy-friends have eluded one of Chicago's biggest manhunters, pleaded with them by radio today to give themselves up.

Meanwhile, police searched Northwestern Illinois and the Southern Wisconsin resort area for three young bandits at large. The fourth member of the gang was seized yesterday.

The gang held up a suburban gambling joint Saturday and shot two policemen in a wild chase in a stolen car.

The radio appeal was made over a local station by Dolores Anderson, 17, and Shirley Fredendall, 19, who bragged to the neighbors that their boy-friends were "tough guys."

Dolores' appeal was addressed to Jerry Maneck, 21.

"I want you in one piece, darling, not a million," Dolores said. "I will stick by you Jerry, and no matter how long it takes, I'll always be around when you need me."

Shirley made a similar appeal to George Mudra, 23. She promised to wait for him, and asked him to surrender for her sake.

Both girls are blonde-haired blondes. Both are stenographers and both were proud of their trigger happy boy-friends. But when police seized them, the girls quickly "squealed."

They gave police the names of the bandits and told what they knew of the gangs activities.

The third bandit at large is Ernest Filbab, 21. The one captured yesterday is Jerry Malek, 27, seized in a raid on his Southside home. Malek was charged with assault to commit murder and was held on $100,000 bond, forestalling an attempt by his lawyer to get him freed on a writ of habeas corpus.

Law enforcement authorities of Kosciusko County, Wis., though they had the other three trapped in the Southern Wisconsin woods last night and staged a raid on an isolated cottage. But the cottage was found empty.

Previously police believed they had the bandits trapped Saturday in a stone quarry near McCook, Ill. More than 100 police, eight airplanes and bloodhounds converged on the area, but the bandits slipped through the cordon.

Here and There in Arkansas

Little Rock June 29 —(AP)—Cases of five Little Rock men charged with illegally obtaining unemployment compensation, were set for July 16 in Little Rock municipal court by Judge Harper Harb today.

They were arrested on warrants, obtained by the Arkansas Employment Security Division, charging they accepted unemployment compensation payments while gainfully employed.

The division said eight warrants had been issued in the opening of a campaign against illegal acceptance of unemployment compensation.

Hot Springs, June 29 —(AP)—The conviction of former City Attorney George Appleby, prominent business man and former Arkansas Highway Commission member, died suddenly at his home here last night.

He observed his 70th birthday yesterday. He was found dead by members of the family in the yard of his home where he had gone to get the evening paper.

A former Washington County judge, Appleby is credited with being the first commercial strawberry grower in this area. He also was in the canning business for many years.

Survivors include his wife, four daughters and two sisters. Funeral plans are incomplete.

Little Rock, June 29 —(AP)—The CIO unions have won two recent elections in Arkansas, the National Labor Relations Board here said today.

The announcement said workers in the Little Rock processing plant of Swift Co., voted 41 to one in favor of the United Gas, Coke Chemical Workers of America representing them as bargaining agent.

At Fox-Norton Lumber Company, Pine Bluff, the board said, workers voted 86 to 17 in favor of being represented by the International Woodworkers of America.

Memphis, Tenn., June 29 —(AP)—A bolt of lightning struck a vacant tenement house near Hughes, Ark., yesterday, killing one teen-aged boy and injuring two others.

James Thomas Lee Little, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Little, was dead on arrival at a hospital here.

Charles Norris, 14, was seriously hurt and Billy Cupples, 13, was burned on the leg and knocked unconscious. They were hospitalized.

Joe Billy Little, 17-year-old brother of the dead boy, was present but not hurt.

The youths had been playing and had huddled in the house to escape a thunderstorm.

Would Nominate Mrs. Roosevelt for V-President
Ridgefield, Conn., June 29 —(UP)—Charles Booth Luce advised the Democratic party today to nominate Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt for vice president as its only chance "against the routine tide of public opinion for a Republican administration."

Writing in her syndicated column, Mrs. Luce said President Truman would "most certainly" receive the presidential nomination and the party was faced with choosing for second place some one who could help restore to it the liberal elements that have quit it since the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

She said that the logical choice would be Mrs. Roosevelt — "a living, active, ardent, regular, not to say New Dealer, Democrat."

"She is the only person in the party who could take back from Wallace the Negro vote, the labor vote, the underground minority vote and, as a mother of four boys in the service, the Pacific vote," Mrs. Luce wrote.

"She would give many disgruntled liberals the cannot stomach Wallace's Moscow axis and who still distrust Republicans an excuse, to rally to the Truman banner."

Mrs. Luce wrote that Mrs. Roosevelt's place on the ticket also would inject the woman issue into the campaign, pointing out that 51 per cent of the votes in the last election were cast by women.

"I dare the Democrats because it is almost certain that, being men first and Democrats second, they will not have the courage, vision or intelligence to adopt it," Mrs. Luce wrote.

The third molls are called wisdom teeth because normally they are not cut until a person is between 18 and 25 years old.

Handicapping Industrial Development in Arkansas

Wayne Fletcher of the Arkansas Resources and Development Commission declared that "if we had a building of 25,000 to 30,000 square feet of floor space in every town in Arkansas we could fill them in six months."

He said a Minnesota firm, for example, was seeking location for a textile mill in a town of from 2,000 to 5,000 population and with a building of 30,000 square feet of floor space for lease or purchase. He added he knew of no such building available, but was attempting to locate one.

Most industries do not want to wait for local interests to construct a building, he added.

Little Rock, June 29 —(AP)—Arkansas educational institutions have received 1,175 acres of land, 1,639 buildings and property costing $14,741,000 from the War Assets Administration.

This was reported today by the Grand Prairie regional office of WAA. The disposals were made under the public benefit allowance program at discounts from appraised value ranging from 40 to 100 percent, the report said.

It added that the five Southwestern states of Arkansas, Texas, Mississippi and Louisiana have received government-owned land originally costing $128,196,240, as compared with $350,654,338 for the nation as a whole.

Little Rock, June 29 —(AP)—The Arkansas Highway Commission will meet July 15 to receive bids on four jobs, including an overpass on highway 82 at Montrose, Chicot County.

Highway Director Jay Baker said the commission also would take bids on approaches to the Crooked Creek bridge on highway 62 in Marion County; a bridge on the Adams Field-College Station road in Pulaski County; and asphaltic concrete paving of 4.5 miles on the Plum Bayou-England road in Lonoke and Pulaski counties.

The Pulaski County bridge and the Plum Bayou-England road jobs are county-federal projects, on which the county pays half the cost, Baker said.

Sacred Rams
The Navajo Indian who owns a four-horned ram will prosper and grow rich, according to Indian legend. The phenomenon occurs occasionally in unimproved breeds of sheep, and such animals are considered sacred.

Would Nominate Mrs. Roosevelt for V-President
Ridgefield, Conn., June 29 —(UP)—Charles Booth Luce advised the Democratic party today to nominate Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt for vice president as its only chance "against the routine tide of public opinion for a Republican administration."

Writing in her syndicated column, Mrs. Luce said President Truman would "most certainly" receive the presidential nomination and the party was faced with choosing for second place some one who could help restore to it the liberal elements that have quit it since the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

She said that the logical choice would be Mrs. Roosevelt — "a living, active, ardent, regular, not to say New Dealer, Democrat."

"She is the only person in the party who could take back from Wallace the Negro vote, the labor vote, the underground minority vote and, as a mother of four boys in the service, the Pacific vote," Mrs. Luce wrote.

"She would give many disgruntled liberals the cannot stomach Wallace's Moscow axis and who still distrust Republicans an excuse, to rally to the Truman banner."

Mrs. Luce wrote that Mrs. Roosevelt's place on the ticket also would inject the woman issue into the campaign, pointing out that 51 per cent of the votes in the last election were cast by women.

"I dare the Democrats because it is almost certain that, being men first and Democrats second, they will not have the courage, vision or intelligence to adopt it," Mrs. Luce wrote.

The third molls are called wisdom teeth because normally they are not cut until a person is between 18 and 25 years old.
